AIIMS Nov. 2004 is the second volume of the series of solving the AIIMS entrance examination question paper for PG students. Entrance examination to any prestigious institute requires specialized techniques and focused planning and the authors have done a good job of solving the paper.

The questions have been segregated into 19 chapters depending upon the specific field . The approach of the author is not confined only to providing the correct answers to questions under review but also to provide logic and rationale to the relevant explanation.

Further, the authors provide state of the art information on all aspects of the topic. For instance, the topic of febrile neutropenia has been dealt with so exhaustively as to match/exceed many standard and reputed textbooks. The aim of the author is to provide information which will enable the PG students to attempt similar question when they undertake the examination.

This approach of structured information on a topic is the greatest strength of this book and is bound to become popular with PG students and in fact even teachers will enjoy reading this book.

The authors have included essential reference books for the PG's to study. However, they have not confined themselves only to these in their explanatory notes. Many super specialty books and journals are included in the explanations.

Overall, the authors succeed in providing stimulating, focused and relevant information and would prove extremely useful for all PG students venturing to appear in entrance examination.
