All India 2005 is the third in the series of solving AIIMS question paper for PG students seeking admission in the reputed Professional Institute. The series is inspired from the challenges the authors faced when they were aspiring PG candidates.

The question paper has been split into 19 chapters depending upon the specialty. The authors provide the factual answer as well as the rationale underlying the given answer.

> ...The book has maintained the standard seen in the series, makes excellent reading and is recommended for all PG students aspiring to become specialists...

Profuse amplification of the topic is done to enhance the understanding of the topic so as to prepare the student to solve identical/related questions when they undertake the examinations and here-in lies the strength of the book. The authors have also cited their reference source to enable the students to enhance further knowledge of the topic, if so desired.

In these efforts the authors have written excellent reviews of several difficult topics like genetics, patterns of inheritance etc. Minor topographical errors can be easily ignored.
