Site of the Semester

Dr. Ramesh Kaul's Thorax site
(Dr. Ramesh Kaul is a hugely successful physician and surgeon working in the US. He made this excellent site, which he fondly dedicates to his mother. The site is a huge repository of information on matters related to thorax. The site gives tips of practical importance, in addition to several movies, flash animations, audio files and other tid bits about thorax. This has been voted the site of the semester by our Editorial board. Highly recommended. In case you want to get in touch with Dr. Ramesh Kaul, you can do so by clicking here)

Highly Recommended Links

- Cooling Bodies as a Natural Clock By Mike Janssen
  (An extremely informative page maintained by Timothy H. Heaton. The page discusses very lucidly how taking rectal temperatures of dead bodies two times helps us determine the exact time since death. Even if you do not understand maths too much, you would enjoy this page, especially because of a very illustrative example given here.)
- Pagina Forense by Dr. Jorge Herbstein
